Deltaville Yachting Center Ready For Boating Season Improvements You Will Notice

Deltaville Yachting Center enjoys surprising you with little improvements. You will notice the lovely coastal mural done by artist, Kim Wilson, on the storage container to the left of DYC driveway entrance. The DYC main bath house recently had a slight face-lift with new counter tops and sinks.

In both the main bath house and the DYC Captain's Clubhouse, the addition of county water should improve your showers. PLEASE NOTIFY OFFICE if water is running in either of these areas, since DYC is billed by the gallon. County water was also connected at Deerview Boat House vacation rental.

The DYC Hi-Dri Boatel has installed new concrete flooring and new boat launch wheel stops. The DYC Clubhouse received a new roof, refreshed ceiling and a little redecorating. Our constant focus is on keeping a clean boatyard, with cleanup of scrap and work areas ongoing.

Thank you for making Deltaville Yachting Center your boating home! ↓

Chesapeake Yacht Sales Update

From the Brokerage Desk

Used boat Sales for early 2023 have been strong with multiple deals closed in January and February and deals pending for March. A relatively thin market for clean, ready to use power and sailboats means values are still up and demand is high. Now is a great time to list your boat and see better return on investment.

New boat interest is picking up with the hope that new inventory will be available this summer. With a new 2023 True North 34OE now in stock and new Catalina 355 and 425 coming soon, we are looking forward to helping folks realize their dreams and enjoy the peace of mind that a new boat can offer. ↓

'Wayward Wind': A Boat Tells Her Continuing Story

Galen and Mindy S. – Refit 1984 S/V Hans Christian 43

The following 'Wayward Wind' story is provided by loving owner, Mindy S.:

Nearly 40 years old, the beautiful S/V Wayward Wind, a 1984 Hans Christian 43' Ketch, was built in the HC yard in Taiwan. Her first owner was interested in learning to sail and eventually go cruising. For reasons unknown to us his plan did not materialize, and the boat was sold in 1985 to a family that did take her cruising. They sailed the East Coast of the U.S and the Caribbean. It is unclear how they got to the Pacific, but somehow they did, and sailed the West Coast to Hawaii. There is no documented information that she ventured any further into the South Pacific, nor did Wayward Wind have a Panama Canal certificate when my father purchased her in 1991.

At the time, she was on the hard in Long Beach, California. As part of the sale agreement the previous owner agreed to sail her to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. My Dad was a career naval officer who, in his early 30's, sailed his 28' Columbia from San Diego to Honolulu, but unfortunately could not afford the time to bring Wayward Wind from California to Hawaii this time. Once happily berthed at the Pearl Harbor Naval Station Marina, Wayward Wind sailed extensively around the Hawaiian Islands for a number of years.

In 1997, Wayward Wind sailed back to San Diego, with a select crew of family and close friends. She sailed the Bay and spent some time in Ensenada, Mexico for a yard period. After repairs, she sailed back to San Diego where she remained until 2000.

During the summer of 2000, Wayward Wind was shipped to the East Coast by truck and berthed on the Sassafras River in the Upper Chesapeake Bay. She sailed the Bay for 4 years and made 2 blue water trips to Rhode Island. One in 2002, sailing a New York Yacht Club cruise around New England, and another to sail the 2003 Marion to Bermuda Cruiser Yacht Race. After enjoying Bermuda, she sailed back to the Chesapeake Bay and continued to explore. Eight years later, she found a new berth in Little Creek, Va.

The decision to embark upon a world circumnavigation was made in 2014. She set out to sail AROUND THE WORLD. In December 2014 she sailed onward to the Caribbean for the start of the World ARC in St. Lucia. January 2015 Wayward Wind embarked on the epic journey to sail the Pacific, Indian and Southern Atlantic Oceans, visiting 27 countries/territories including Niue, Vanuatu, Christmas Island, St. Helena before returning to Florida in May 2016.

Later that year, Wayward Wind proved her seaworthy reputation when Hurricane Michael hit Southeast Florida. She suffered some serious, mostly cosmetic damage that broke our hearts. However, her hull and spirit were NOT wrecked. A bit battered, thankfully not broken, she proved she was not finished voyaging. After some time in the yard for hurricane repairs, Wayward Wind set back out to sea in 2018. My Dad singlehanded her north to Deltaville, Va. And she has called Fishing Bay Yacht Club home since then.

2019 is the year that my parents decided it was time for a smaller sailboat, one that could go anywhere, yet be simple to single hand. Generously we offered 'first right of refusal' of taking over responsibility for Wayward Wind. Galen and I made the decision to live aboard Wayward Wind again and began to dream of where else she could explore. We jumped/leaped into action, began making her our own home and creating a wish list....

Galen and I decided to embark upon a complete refit of S/V Wayward Wind. We started in the Summer of 2022 and hope to move aboard Summer of 2023. We are doing a considerable amount of work ourselves as it is a labor of love and one sure way to REALLY know our boat. DYC team will assist with some of the work while we invest time, energy and lots of elbow grease ourselves! Deltaville Yachting Center is the perfect place for her 'makeover' – Mindy S.

"WINTER DOES NOT DISCOURAGE THIS SAILING COUPLE"

When asked to name their 3 favorite things about Deltaville, Va.- Mindy and Galen said "The PEOPLE. We have found the community of Deltaville to incredibly kind, resourceful, welcoming, interesting and thoughtful. We have grown to love living in Deltaville, due in large part to the PEOPLE. We also love the abundance of nature and animal life....and FRESH oysters!" ↓
